Letter from the Publisher

We must believe we have worth and have the courage to produce. Have you ever got the notion you're going to stop a bad habit? You resolve to do better. Somehow the call of the wild forsakes your effort.

When reflection comes you ask yourself why, over and over again. We must believe in ourselves and try again. We must also realize we are creatures of habit, good or bad. Habits take time to develop one way or the other. How about, let's challenge each other to build a community. Place in front of us; 'practice makes perfect'. A foundation would be a good place to start.

The foundation of a community must be solid. Trial and error will prove the foundation. We of this community must come together and build the foundation, because together we are strong. We must overcome fear, ignorance, false pride, and selfishness they destroy.
